GENERAL

Simon Berry is a specialist Environmental Lawyer with over 42 years' experience in the field. He spent more than 20 years as a partner in two major law firms and eight years as a specialist barrister before founding Berry Simons with Sue Simons in 2012.

Simon has wide ranging experience in providing legal and strategic advice to both private and public sectors and has an in-depth knowledge of New Zealand's Environmental legislation and its implementation. He has led many multi-disciplinary teams to obtain authorisations for major commercial, industrial infrastructure and power projects and in relation to complex (predominantly water related) policy and planning instruments.

As specialist Environmental Counsel, Simon Berry regularly represents clients before regional and district councils and the Environment Court. Simon is an experienced independent hearing commissioner under the Making Good Decisions programme and has recently renewed his Chair's endorsement.

Simon's areas of expertise include:

- Independent hearing commissioner appointments for over 25 years.
- Interpretation and application of:
 - Resource Management Act 1991 (and related environmental statutes such as the Urban Development Act 2022) and district and regional planning instruments;
 - Local Government Act 2002;
